

SEVENTY TWO HOURS · BEFORE LESSON ONE

Four moves. Three days.

You are changing what reaches you for three days, then watching what changes. Willpower has little to do with it.

THE FOUR MOVES

01

Remove the color

Make the phone less visually demanding.

02

Control the feeds

Choose which inputs reach you during the reset.

03

Silence the machine

Let people reach you without letting every platform interrupt you.

04

Give the phone a home

Protect one repeated moment instead of policing the whole day.

WHAT THE SEVENTY TWO HOURS FEEL LIKE

Commonly reported. Yours will not match exactly.

HOURS 0 TO 6

The phantom reach

Your hand goes to the pocket with no thought behind it. You will catch yourself unlocking a phone you had no reason to unlock.

HOURS 6 TO 18

The boredom

This is the hard part and it is the part most people quit in. Small gaps in the day that used to be filled are suddenly empty, and empty feels worse than it should.

HOURS 18 TO 36

The settle

The noise drops. Most people notice they are reaching less, that a task holds them longer, and that falling asleep gets easier.

HOURS 36 TO 72

The room gets bigger

Conversations run longer. You hear the second half of what someone says instead of the first half.

DAYS FOUR TO SEVEN · WHAT THE HABIT WILL SAY

"I have proven I can handle it now."

"Just one app. Not the bad ones."

"Ten minutes is not the same thing."

"It was a busy week. This is not a normal test."

Each one is the habit talking. Hold the arrangement fourteen days before you change anything.

THE DAILY CHECK · NOTICE, DO NOT GRADE

DAY 1

DAY 2

DAY 3

When did I reach without deciding?

☐☐☐

Where was it easier to stay present?

☐☐☐

Which boundary is worth keeping tomorrow?

☐☐☐

READ IT OUT LOUD ONCE

I do not trade presence for distraction.
My phone is a tool. I am not.

The part that feels pointless is the part that is working.
